ABOUT ME

Dr. Eric L. Patrick, PharmD, is a Certified Financial Education Instructor recognized by the National Financial Educators Council and the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority. HBCU Buzz, the nation's largest online media resource for Historically Black Colleges and Universities, named him a Top 30 Under 30 joining people like Angel Rich who Forbes has deemed the next Steve Jobs.

He's been featured in Black Enterprise and Moneyish, contributed written works to major financial organizations such as Acorns and Magnify Money, and worked with Experian and the Urban League. NBC News has recognized him for his work educating youth and young adults on investing best practices.

Dr. Patrick graduated from the University of South Florida in 3 years and went on to graduate with a Doctor of Pharmacy degree from Howard University where he is a Milestone Alumni Achievement recipient. Since graduating from Howard, Eric works as a Pediatric Clinical Pharmacist while managing a leading resource of financial education for urban communities with his company, Black Market Exchange.

Eric's current online community exceeds 53,000 people all around the globe. For fun, Eric likes to watch movies with his wife and daughters, is a self-proclaimed food critic, and creates financial literacy-related freestyles coining him the "Hip-Hop Stock Doc."
